Title

Research on Business Models Infringing Intellectual Property Phase 6

Description

The purpose of this procedure will be the conclusion of a contract for a maximum duration of 12 months, covering a study to identify, dissect, analyse and describe specific business models used for facilitating IP crime on a commercial scale concerning applications (apps) and measures to investigate such crimes. The independent research study shall provide an overview of the different infringing business models concerning applications (apps) assessing how they function, how they are financed, how they generate profits for their operators, what kinds of content, products and services they disseminate and how large their user bases are. The results of the research studies shall provide enhanced understanding to policymakers, law enforcement, judiciary, civil society and businesses. At the same time, they are intended to help identify possible responses to tackle the challenge of commercial scale IP crime violations effectively.
